

ABSTRACT

A transit sign includes a first housing, an electronic display disposed within the first housing, and an end cap mounted on an end of the first housing. The first housing is configured to link with a second 5 housing having the same cross-section as the first housing. The transit sign displays transit related information on the display.